

GUIDANCE FOR STREET TRADERS

ICE CREAM TRADING IN HARINGEY

Haringey Council does not issue Street Trading Licences in respect of Ice Cream Sales (except at approved Street Festivals).

'Ice Cream' includes goods that are wholly or mainly ice cream, frozen confectionery or other similar commodities.

People who own ice cream vans may trade as 'itinerant traders' going from place to place remaining in any one location in the course of trading for periods of 15 minutes or less and not returning to that location or any other location in the same street on the same day.

To be classed as an itinerant trader you must travel from place to place remaining in any one location in the course of trading for periods of 15 minutes or less and not returning to the same location or any other location in the same street on the same day

However, there are some roads in which trading is not permitted. A complete list appears overleaf.

People trading from the traditional stop-me-and-buy-one tricycle or the like are also subject to the same conditions.

If you leave the vehicle parked and travel on foot say with a small frozen cabinet, you would still infringe the Regulations.

If you are delivering house-to-house or by order by phone or by internet than you do not infringe the law if you deliver to the door and take the cash or cheque payment on the householder's property.

Even if you find private land to trade from with the written permission of the landowner, you would have to get at least 7 metres away from the nearest footway or roadway.

Traders convicted of unlicensed street trading face a daily fine up to £1,000. If you are seen trading after being convicted in the Courts, Police and Council Officials can seize the vehicle and it is up to a Magistrates' Court whether or not you get it back.

This information sheet solely relates to the law of street trading. For information on Food Safety, Insurance, Road Traffic Act (including Construction and Use of Motor Vehicles) and on Noise (including Ice Cream Chimes) please make other enquiries of the Council or other relevant Agency.
